

Delivering breakthrough value

DWS Team Edge best practice series

Provide your team and organization with ideas and guidelines to become more efficient and impactful when working with clients.

Best practice: Rethink and re-energize the client review.

Despite a dramatic evolution in our industry, most practices have not made a substantive change to their client review process—one of the most meaningful and impactful interactions an advisor has with a client. It provides a consistent touch-point where you reconnect with clients and reinforce the value you provide. Ask yourself:

- Has your value proposition evolved over the past several years?
- Do your client reviews reflect change or are they being conducted in the same manner?

Portfolio updates and overviews are available almost instantly, at the client's convenience, with the push of a button on an iPad or smartphone. A one-on-one appointment can—and should—be a much more valuable use of time for your client and for you.

Best practice: Optimize your client review format to be a forward-looking, goals-based discussion.

Use this time as a platform to discuss strategy and reconnect on a personal and professional level. Reinforce your value proposition. Key elements of these meetings should include:

- An in-depth discussion of any changes in the clients' lives and the impact on their goals and priorities
- A goals-based discussion on short-, intermediate-, and long-term priorities
- An update of their financial plan reflecting changes in the markets, their lives, goals and priorities
- An overview and reinforcement of your wealth management philosophy, your perspective on the markets, and the implications on their progress toward their goals

In-person client meetings have the potential to deepen your relationships and systematically reinforce the unique value you bring to those fortunate enough to work with you. Plan them accordingly.
