Gross expense ratio as of the latest prospectus: 1.10%. See prospectus for any contractual or voluntary waivers; without a waiver, costs would have been higher.

How did the Fund perform last year and what affected its performance?

Class S shares of the Fund returned 11.38% for the period ended October 31, 2025. The Fund's broad-based indices, the MSCI ACWI All Cap Index and the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index, returned 22.05% and 5.69%, respectively for the same period, while the Fund's additional, more narrowly based index, the ICE BofA 3-Month U.S. Treasury Bill Index, returned 4.34%.

The Fund's allocation to equities made the largest contribution to relative performance versus the ICE BofA 3-Month U.S. Treasury Bill Index. Stocks performed very well in the period as positive trends in global economic growth, inflation, and corporate earnings outweighed concerns about the potential impact of US tariffs. The markets were further boosted by the increasingly accommodative policies of major central banks, highlighted by the US Federal Reserve's decision to cut interest rates by a quarter point at its meetings in September and October. Holdings in the information technology, financials, and communication services sectors made the largest contribution to results. Conversely, positions in health care, real estate, and materials detracted slightly. The Fund used derivatives to adjust its equity positioning, which was a net detractor.

The Fund's fixed-income allocation also helped relative performance. The largest contribution came from developed-market sovereign debt, which makes up the majority of the bond portfolio. Holdings in developed-market corporate issues also aided results. Emerging-market bonds made a small contribution, as well.

The Fund's currency positioning was a minor detractor due to exposure to the euro and Japanese yen. On the other hand, positioning in the Norwegian krone and Swiss franc contributed.

An allocation to gold, achieved through an investment in the exchange-traded fund SPDR Gold MiniShares Trust (10.2%), helped results. Gold hit a series of all-time highs throughout the course of the period as investors sought ways to offset the risk of growing global government debt.

Percentages in parentheses are based on the Fund's net assets as of October 31, 2025.

MSCI ACWI All Cap Index captures large, mid, small and micro-cap representation across Developed Markets countries and large, mid and small cap representation across Emerging Markets countries. The index is comprehensive, covering approximately 99% of the global equity investment opportunity set.

Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index is a flagship measure of global investment grade debt from local currency markets. This multi-currency benchmark includes treasury, government-related, corporate and securitized fixed-rate bonds from both developed and emerging markets issuers.

The MSCI ACWI All Cap Index and the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index are required broad-based indices that represent the Fund's overall equity and debt markets, respectively.

ICE BofA 3-Month U.S. Treasury Bill Index tracks the performance of the US dollar denominated US Treasury Bills publicly issued in the US domestic market with a remaining term to final maturity of less than three months. The ICE BofA 3-Month U.S. Treasury Bill Index is a more narrowly based index that reflects the market sector in which the fund invests.

Index returns do not reflect any fees or expenses and it is not possible to invest directly into an index.

Stocks may decline in value. Investing in foreign securities presents certain risks, such as currency fluctuations, political and economic changes, and market risks. Emerging markets tend to be more volatile and less liquid than the markets of more mature economies, and generally have less diverse and less mature economic structures and less stable political systems than those of developed countries. The Fund's use of forward currency contracts may not be successful in hedging currency exchange rates changes and could eliminate some or all of the benefit of an increase in the value of a foreign currency versus the US dollar. Although allocation among different asset categories generally limits risk, fund management may favor an asset category that underperforms other assets or markets as a whole. Investing in derivatives entails special risks relating to liquidity, leverage and credit that may reduce returns and/or increased volatility. Investments in lower-quality ("junk bonds") and non-rated securities present greater risk of loss than investments in higher-quality securities. The Fund may lend securities to approved institutions. Please read the prospectus for details.
