How did the Fund perform last year and what affected its performance?

Class C shares of the Fund returned 4.24% (unadjusted for sales charges) for the period ended September 30, 2025. The Fund's broad-based index, the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index, returned 2.88% for the same period, while the Fund's additional, more narrowly based index, the Bloomberg 1-3 Year Government/Credit Index, returned 4.12%.

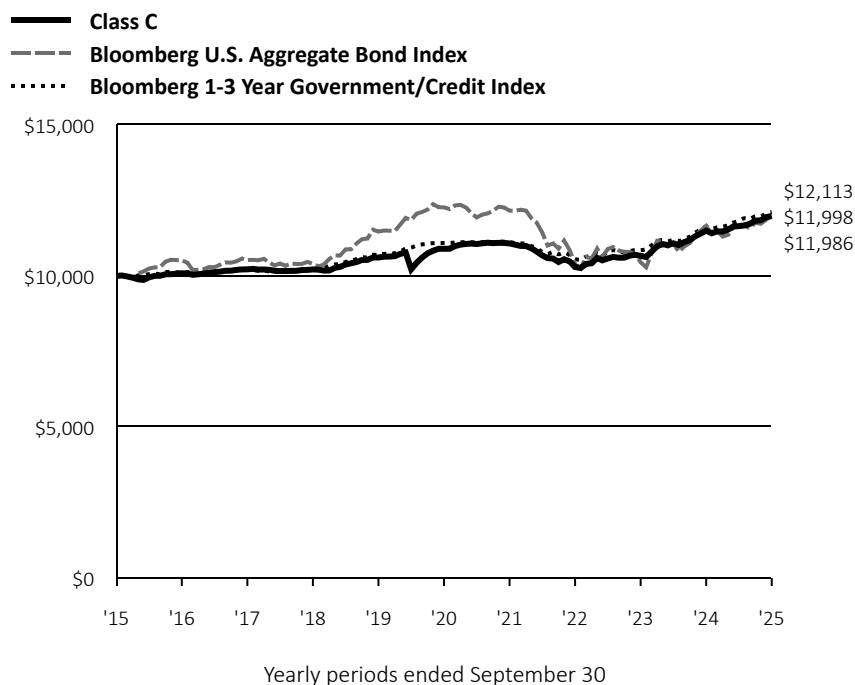

The Fund's positive absolute performance for the 12 months was supported as the US Treasury yield curve steepened as investors anticipated lower short-term rates from the US Federal Reserve (Fed).

The Fund's tactical shifts with respect to portfolio duration and corresponding interest rate sensitivity proved additive. In this vein, we were cautious in adding interest rate exposure when we viewed the market's Fed rate cut projections as overly optimistic, while becoming more constructive as expectations moved towards pricing in fewer moves than our forecast. In addition, as the yield curve assumed a more normal upward sloping shape, we positioned the Fund to benefit from yield declines and corresponding price increases on bonds as they rolled down toward their maturity dates. In terms of sector exposures, we took advantage of various headlines which drove episodic spread widening to position the Fund opportunistically in investment grade corporate bonds, adding meaningfully to performance as we avoided credit issues. Finally, holdings of securitized assets provided strong performance highlighted by overweight exposure to consumer debt within asset-backed and mortgage-backed securities. Allocations to commercial mortgage-backed securities and collateralized loan obligations were also additive.

Positioning within the Fund's Treasury allocation was a slight detractor as we were underweight the two-year segment of the curve which benefited the most from declining yields.

Cumulative Growth of an Assumed $10,000 Investment

Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index is a broad-based flagship benchmark that measures the investment grade, US dollar-denominated, fixed-rate taxable bond market. The index includes Treasuries, government-related and corporate securities, fixed rate agency MBS, ABS and CMBS (agency and non-agency).

The Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Bond Index is a required broad-based index that represents the fund's overall debt market.

Bloomberg 1–3 Year Government/Credit Index is an unmanaged index consisting of all US government agency and Treasury securities, as well as all investment grade corporate debt securities with maturities of one to three years.

The Bloomberg 1–3 Year Government/Credit Index is a more narrowly based index that reflects the market sector in which the fund invests.

Index returns do not reflect any fees or expenses and it is not possible to invest directly into an index.

In order to reduce the amount of mail you receive and to help reduce expenses, we generally send a single copy of any shareholder report and prospectus to each household. If you do not want the mailing of these documents to be combined with those for other members of your household, please contact your financial representative or call DWS toll free at (800) 728-3337.

Bond investments are subject to interest-rate, credit, liquidity, and market risks to varying degrees. When interest rates rise, bond prices generally fall. Credit risk refers to the ability of an issuer to make timely payments of principal and interest. Investments in lower-quality ("junk bonds") and non-rated securities present greater risk of loss than investments in higher-quality securities. Investing in derivatives entails special risks relating to liquidity, leverage and credit that may reduce returns and/or increase volatility. The Fund may lend securities to approved institutions. Please read the prospectus for details.
